MARKING WEBBING

Approved Writing Instrument: water-resistant Sanford Inc. “Sharpie” brand permanent markers and pens may be used to mark equipment. This brand of felt-tip marker uses a type of permanent ink that is not known to cause deterioration to nylon and polyester webbing. This is the only brand of marker that has been tested and approved. Solvents used in inks that do not pertain to the Sanford Inc. “Sharpie” brand can cause loss of strength in webbing and should not be used.

Marking fall protection equipment made of webbing with a pen or marker is acceptable as long as approved writing instruments are used. Information such as company name and inspection status is often applied to the product for proper identification. More information on inspecting your product and how to complete an inspection log is included in the Use & Safety Manual that was shipped with your product. Please follow all Manufacturer’s Instructions.
